Hunters in the Snow

The over-all picture is winter icy mountains
in the background the return from the hunt it is toward evening from the left sturdy hunters lead in their pack the inn-sign hanging from a broken hinge is a stag a crucifix between his antlers the cold inn yard is deserted but for a huge bonfire that flares wind-driven tended by women who cluster about it to the right beyond the hill is a pattern of skaters

Brueghel the painter concerned with it all has chosen a winter-struck bush for his foreground to complete the picture

William Carlos Williams

Storm Fear

When the wind works against us in the dark,
And pelts with snow
The lowest chamber window on the east,
And whispers with a sort of stifled bark,
The beast,
'Come out! Come out!'-
It costs no inward struggle not to go,
Ah, no!

I count our strength,
Two and a child,
Those of us not asleep subdued to mark
How the cold creeps as the fire dies at length,- How drifts are piled,
Dooryard and road ungraded,
Till even the comforting barn grows far away
And my heart owns a doubt

Whether 'tis in us to arise with day
And save ourselves unaided.

Robert Frost

The Choice

The intellect of man is forced to choose perfection of the life, or of the work,
And if it take the second must refuse
A heavenly mansion, raging in the dark.
When all that story's finished, what's the news?
In luck or out the toil has left its mark:
That old perplexity an empty purse,
Or the day's vanity, the night's remorse.

William Butler Yeats

October

O hushed October morning mild, Thy leaves have ripened to the fall;
Tomorrow's wind, if it be wild,
Should waste them all.

The crows above the forest call;
Tomorrow they may form and go.
O hushed October morning mild,
Begin the hours of this day slow.

Make the day seem to us less brief,
Hearts not averse to being beguiled, Beguile us in the way you know.
Release one leaf at break of day;
At noon release another leaf,
One from our trees, one far away.
Retard the sun with gentle mist;
Enchant the land with amethyst.

Slow, slow!
For the grapes' sake, if the were all,
Whose elaves already are burnt with frost,
Whose clustered fruit must else be lost—
For the grapes' sake along the all.

Robert Frost

His new publisher, Henry Holt, who would remain with him for the rest of his life, had purchased all of the copies of North of Boston. Diagnosed with cancer in 1937 and having undergone surgery, she also had had a long history of heart trouble, to which she ultimately succumbed.ChildrenFrost and White had six children together. He would subsequently win Pulitzors for Collected Poems (1931), A Further Range (1937) and A Witness Tree (1943).In 1960, Congress awarded Frost the Congressional Gold Medal. Robert Frost was an American poet and winner of four Pulitzer Prizes. In order to continue enjoying our site, we ask that you confirm your identity as a human. Pound was released in 1958, after the indictments were dropped. As a special guest at President John F. He returned to Lawrence to join his wife.In 1900, Frost moved with his wife and children to a farm in New Hampshire — property that Frost's grandfather had purchased for them—and they attempted to make a life on it for the next 12 years. He taught at Dartmouth and the University of Michigan at various times, but his most significant association was with Amherst College, where he taught steadily during the period from 1916 until his wife's death in 1938. Pound and Thomas were the first to review his work in a favorable light, as well as provide significant encouragement. Following his father's passing, Frost moved with his mother and sister, Jeanie, to the town of Lawrence, Massachusetts. He could not find any publishers who were willing to underwrite his other poems.In 1912, Frost and Elinor decided to sell the farm in New Hampshire and move the family to England, where they hoped there would be more publishers willing to take a chance on new poets. Though it was a fruitful time for Frost's writing, it was a difficult period in his personal life and followed the deaths of two of his young children.During that time, Frost and Elinor attempted several endeavors, including poultry farming, all of which were fairly unsuccessful.Despite such challenges, it was during this time that Frost acclimated himself to rural life. Kennedy's 1961 inauguration. Shortly after World War I broke out in August 1914, Frost and Elinor were forced to return to America.Public Recognition for Frost's PoetryWhen Frost arrived back in America, his reputation had preceded him, and he was well-received by the literary world. Frost spent his first 40 years as an unknown. His ashes are interred in a family plot in Bennington, Vermont. His sight now failing, he was not able to see the words in the sunlight and substituted the reading of one of his poems, "The Gift Outright," which he had committed to memory. Famous PoemsSome of Frost's most well-known poems include: "The Road Not Taken""Birches""Fire and Ice""Mending Wall""Home Burial""The Death of the Hired Man""Stopping By Woods on a Snowy Evening""Acquainted with the Night""Out, Out""Nothing Gold Can Stay"Pulitzer Prizes and AwardsDuring his lifetime, Frost received more than 40 honorary degrees. She was his co-valedictorian when they graduated in 1892.In 1894, Frost proposed to White, who was attending St. Lawrence University, but she turned him down because she first wanted to finish school. He was survived by two of his daughters, Lesley and Irma. The main library is now named in his honor. After his death, Elinor gave birth to four more children: son Carol (1902), who would commit suicide in 1940; Irma (1903), who later developed mental illness; Marjorie (1905), who died in her late 20s after giving birth; and Elinor (1907), who died just weeks after she was born. They married on December 19, 1895.White died in 1938. The time Frost spent in England was one of the most significant periods in his life, but it was short-lived. Kennedy's inauguration. Frost became a poetic force and the unofficial "poet laureate" of the United States. DOWNLOAD BIOGRAPHY'S ROBERT FROST FACT CARDIn 1894, Frost had his first poem, "My Butterfly: an Elegy," published in The Independent, a weekly literary journal based in New York City. Eliot, championed the release of his old acquaintance Ezra Pound, who was being held in a federal mental hospital for treason due to his involvement with fascists in Italy during World War II. Thank you very much for your cooperation. In fact, he grew to depict it quite well, and began setting many of his poems in the countryside. By then, White had graduated from college, and she accepted. In 1924, Frost was awarded his first of four Pulitzer Prizes, for his book New Hampshire. Daughter Lesley was born in 1899.Elliot died of cholera in 1900. For a period of more than 40 years beginning in 1921, Frost also spent almost every summer and fall at Middlebury College, teaching English on its campus in Ripton, Vermont.In the late 1950s, Frost, along with Ernest Hemingway and T. After high school, Frost attended Dartmouth College for several months, returning home to work a slew of unfulfilling jobs. Soviet Union TourIn 1962, Frost visited the Soviet Union on a goodwill tour. Within just a few months, Frost, now 38, found a publisher who would print his first book of poems, A Boy's Will, followed by North of Boston a year later. Beginning in 1897, Frost attended Harvard University but had to drop out after two years due to health concerns. Frost credited Thomas's long walks over the English landscape as the inspiration for one of his most famous poems, "The Road Not Taken." Apparently, Thomas's indecision and regret regarding what paths to take inspired Frost's work. Frost then decided to leave on a trip to Virginia, and when he returned, he proposed again. Frost famously sent the Atlantic the same poems that they had rejected before his stay in England.In 1915, Frost and Elinor settled down on a farm that they purchased in Franconia, New Hampshire. He spent the first 11 years of his life there, until his journalist father, William Prescott Frost Jr., died of tuberculosis. S. He exploded on the scene after returning from England at the beginning of World War I. Two poems, "The Tuft of Flowers" and "The Trial by Existence," were published in 1906. Their first child, Elliot, was born in 1896. It was at this time that Frost met fellow poets Ezra Pound and Edward Thomas, two men who would affect his life in significant ways. There, Frost began a long career as a teacher at several colleges, reciting poetry to eager crowds and writing all the while. They moved in with his grandparents, and Frost attended Lawrence High School. He died of complications from prostate surgery on January 29, 1963.Early YearsFrost was born on March 26, 1874, in San Francisco, California. However, when he accidentally misrepresented a statement made by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev following their meeting, he unwittingly undid much of the good intended by his visit.DeathOn January 29, 1963, Frost died from complications related to prostate surgery. Famous works include "Fire and Ice," "Mending Wall," "Birches," "Out Out," "Nothing Gold Can Stay" and "Home Burial." His 1916 poem, "The Road Not Taken," is often read at graduation ceremonies across the United States. Robert Frost reading his poetry at John F. Frost met his future love and wife, Elinor White, when they were both attending Lawrence High School. Journals such as the Atlantic Monthly, who had turned Frost down when he submitted work earlier, now came calling. In 1916, he published Frost's Mountain Interval, a collection of other works that he created while in England, including a tribute to Thomas.
